Included here are the recently digitized documents from the 1971 Litvin case.

Side note: This was my last folder to digitize, so I finally get to get rid of the squeaky filing cabinet in my office! No matter how much WD-40 I used on every nook and cranny, it still sounded like nails on a chalkboard. Horrible horrible piece of metal.

I also took the liberty of making some notes here in case it saves you some reading:

- No one ever says what the street name is for Group H85.
- A requisition log related to this case shows a 5g sample of 'moth dust' was pulled from inventory. The substance Litvin has in the first letter?
- Litvin was on a ten-year hiatus before this. He was apparently suffered a theoplasmic injury from a C—-- and had to retire. Why was he called back for this?

To Lydia,

I send this short report to assure the Calyptra offices of my safe arrival and settlement in Boston , Massachusetts.
My lodgings are adequate and I appreciate the office's help in securing this living arrangement.

I have also located the sample that was arranged for me in these quarters.
I have measured 5 grams. Please confirm that this is the quantity intended.
Just want to make sure housekeeping didn't get into it.

In any case, it's enough to start tracking down H85.

Happy to be back,
Detective Fred Litvin

Dear Lydia

I hope this letter finds you well. The provided sample was very useful in identifying potentially senior members of Group H85. It took me several months, but I was able to use the substance to attend one of the group's performance-parties.
I have planted the seed that somebody else may distributing the substance in the city of Boston, and they are urging me to help them hunt down the source.
In this way I have gained their trust.

Our contacts might start getting pressure, though, so I figure someone should know.

Tangentially: has there been an update on my request for a partner on this assignment?
I feel naked out here by myself. Ten years ago we always went in pairs, and I think that should still be standard.

Fred

This is good to hear. Please keep us posted.

Additionally, please provide identifying information about any‘senior officials’ at your nearest convenience.

I have also received your request for a field partner, and one cannot be provided to you at this time.

Thank you, sincerely,

Lydia

I'm writing mostly to confirm that I'm still alive. Unfortunately, it hasn't been a very productive month. I think group H85 became suspicious of me after I couldn't help them track down a rival distributor of the substance.

Perhaps I was too unhelpful. Then again , it's not like any such distributor existed.

Yours,

Fred

I am reporting an unofficial meeting scheduled between Detective Fred Litvin and a middle-aged man with a prominent moth tattoo under his ear...
Presumably a member of H85.

The meeting occurred in the Omni Hotel lobby around 1PM on 06/30/1971.

They spoke for approximately one hour, and then parted ways.
I could not get close enough to make out what they were speaking of, but thought you should know.

Sincerely,

SK

Hope this correspondence finds you in pursuit of Group H85 with no problems.
We have received reports of an uptick in their activity as of June.

We understand that returning to the field after ten years may have made you unused to the rigors of the field, but we asked you to do this job for a reason.

I still have not received the identity information I asked for.
Please send this at your nearest convenience.
Also note that follow-up investigations concerning the group's goals and methods are not part of your responsibility.

Please submit a report as quickly as possible.

Sincerely,
Lydia

I have nothing to report, and I find this message strangely accusatory.
One could surmise that– despite my requests for asistance or companionsship– someone has been assigned to report my activities in a covert manner.

I have gathered no useful intelligence since I was ousted for not helping shut down the rival "supplier."
This city is quite unforgiving. I will have to find another branch of H85
locally to continue my work.

Please allow me to do my work without further prodding,
or reconsider my request for a partner.

Sincerely, with my deepest regards,

Fred

Your request for a partner has been denied. You now have one outstanding warrant for a report on your investigation.

Sincerely,
Lydia

For context, the following letters were recovered by SK after raiding Detective Litvin's last-known whereabouts. They appear to have never been sent to Lydia. Additionally, she found 0.5g of unused 'moth dust.'

Finding H85 isn't the hard part. You can find them in any bar you like.

Hell, even the receptionist at my hotel had the moth tattoo under her ear.

Can you believe the odds? Or did you know that already, and just not tell me?

Anyway, the actual hard part is getting them to trust you.

The sample you gave me helped a lot, but I have to disclose that I wound up consuming some of it myself. It was necessary for me to "pass" as a prospective member at one of their parties.

The effect was much more subtle than our guidebook had led me to believe.
The trees were not sharp. The Moon was a soft kind of bright. I think I saw a D---, and it tried to talk to me.

I didn't respond, of course.

Anyway, I'll let you know when I have more concrete information, but I think I'm in.

Dear Lydia,

It feels like the substance is all that these people care about. I've managed to work my way deeper into their organization , but I haven't been able to avoid consuming the dust.
Not if I don't want to blow my cover. And still , I haven't heard of anything you might call a terrorist plot.

It makes me wonder: why are you even after these guys? And why did you want me to do it?
I was promised that I'd have the opportunity to save lives.
Coming out here after everything that happened in 1961 feels like a waste of time.
They're just partying all the time. Don't you have bigger fish to fry?

It could also be that the dust is having an effect on me.I haven't slept this ell in years, and the dreams...

Well , I wish you'd send me a partner.
I'm aware these things can be seductive , and having a second pair of eyes would be useful.
I don't know why you think I'm the one for the job. The '61 things make me more vulnerable, not less.

Fred

I saw your agent today. You're following me?
You can afford to send me a stalker,
but not a partner?

Did you expect them to like me, after '61?

I'm not your canary, you know.

Guess what?
I spoke to the D——, and it helped me confirm my suspicions.
You knew that the '61 incident would make me sensitive to the substance, didn't you?
You never thought I'd actually do my job, but you figured they'd let me in, and that I'd turn, so you sicced Sydney on me.

I wish I knew what you wanted with these people.
They're all so alive here.
Even I feel alive.

Do you even remember what that's like?
I hope you get to find out. The combination on the dust locker is 12890.
I know you're too curious not to look EVENTUALLY.

It's probably the only good thing about you.
Goodbye forever.
